

Mark Dioguardi: Partner Dioguardi Flynn

For almost 30 years, Mark Dioguardi has been involved in the Valley's community affairs, law, philanthropic and government arenas. As co-founder and managing attorney of the law firm of Dioguardi Flynn, he oversees day-to-day operations and has spearheaded the firm's growth strategy. He started a branch of the firm in Goodyear in order to position the practice as a leading law firm in the West Valley. The firm also has offices in Phoenix and Scottsdale.

Dioguardi specializes in real estate law and private venture capital. In his career, he has handled an estimated $4 billion of real estate, venture capital and equity transactions. He has also played a vital role in the redevelopment of Downtown Phoenix and the development of the West Valley. To that end, he has worked as an attorney and principal owner in the founding and licensing of West Valley National Bank, the region's first locally owned and managed community bank. He also represented the developer of the Cleveland Indians' and Cincinnati Reds' spring training facility in Goodyear.

Dioguardi has exerted his influence as a gubernatorial appointee public sector member of the Joint Legislative Committee on Ethics and Election Reform, and served as a special investigative counsel on behalf of the Maricopa County Attorney. He also has been a supporter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Time in industry: 28 years
Time at current company: 1 year
Years firm has been in AZ: 1
Number of attorneys: 4

"Many in the legal profession are content to follow the beaten path. But Mark looks further ahead and determines the best way to achieve his and his clients' goals."

— James E Padish, shareholder, Tiffany & Bosco